“ Dear Maleai, Doug and girls,

I have thought about you often, hoping that things are getting a bit easier for you with the passage of time. I know it takes awhile for the heart to heal, but it will get better, I promise. You will never forget his sweet little smile and gaze, his baby smell and soft touch, and all of the cuddles you shared. Hold these memories near to your heart. May you find strength in them and the fact that he is in heaven watching over you, Thinking of you, praying for you, and sending you peace.

*Love and prayers,

“ Dearest Family, I know your arms feel empty right now and your heart is full of pain and questions. I too felt the same way. But like you I had a supportive Husband, other children family and friends to help me then and now 37 years late. This promise made by our Heavenly Father in Isaiah 25:8 and Revelation 21:3-5 were a sort of comfort to me. But this web site addressed all my questions that were hidden deep inside that I just couldn't discuss. Please check it out. It will comfort your whole family. Take care.

“ Your dad just called and told me about the death of Benjamin. We have been in Maui celebrating my birthday Mar. 21 and my sons upcoming HS graduation. Meanwhile you lost your son on that same day. As a mother of an only child and a close friend of Dicks I feel a connection to your little boy and you all. Words can't express my sadness for your entire family. My heart breaks thinking about your pain. He and I spoke awhile about this tragic loss. He expressed how much comfort he felt holding Benjamin before his death. Your dad is grieving through his work as you might expect !! Remember to hug your girls and each other daily because life clearly throws us curves balls.
