Jim Strickland was a wonderful human being. He cared more for others than he did of himself. He opened a door for me that I will never forget and he changed my Quality of Life. I love you Jim! Rest In Peace my Brother

Jim showed his work ethic in my first conversation which was my interview before transferring from St. Paul to Valley. He said, engineers do not work 8 to 5, they work to get the job done. Then is asked if I was willing to that, Of course, I said yes. Over my years at the Valley plant, I found that to be true. But he gave his full support to everyone and was great to work for. Once there was a complaint about engineers coming in late. He nipped that in the bud, responding that engineers had that flexibility especially when they worked late the day before or had things to attend to. It was getting the job done, not meeting 40 hours. More than once I had a St. Paul meeting and my return flight arrived at midnight. Sometimes I was in by 8 am, sometimes not. Jim never said a thing about any late arrival to me nor did he ever repeat that comment / question from my interview. 28 of my 40 3M years were in Valley. Jim was the best of all the plant managers during those years. His heavenly reward is well deserved. My best to his family as they remember him.

Jim showed his energy towards his beliefs. For a young person just starting out at 3M you knew where you stood with him. Strong work ethic expected by him but also a sense of family he built within his staff and work force. He believed and gave opportunity for those to grow in many ways. He demonstrated all of these traits while at work and away. While at 3M for 42 years I had discussions of this to many coworkers and friends. He left these traits with me and I have used them in my daily work and family values. True boss/leader that will be greatly missed.
