“Mama, I can still vividly remember the first time I met you. It was a random day, Andrew asked me if he can pick up some stuffs at home. Then I saw you lying on the couch. I instantly felt nervous and scared at the same time of how you and daddy would react seeing me. But that nervousness turned into happiness as you started talking to me. At that very moment, I knew how genuine you are as a person. I felt really comfortable talking with you. Days pass by, I was lucky enough to have some bonding time with you. We do a lot of stuffs together. We go to salon and spa to get our eyebrows, foot spa and nails done. You always tell me that your dream is to have a daughter and do girly stuffs together. You're such a kind, generous and sweet person. And fast forward on our wedding day, I still remember you smiling while looking at us. You and daddy hug me, welcoming me to your family. You have a big heart, Ma. And I admire you for that. You showed me how caring and loving you are. You're such an amazing person inside and out.

Thank you, Ma for all the life lessons, sacrifices, unending support and unconditional love you gave us. You gave your all to our family and for that, we truly appreciate you. No words can express how grateful we are for all that you have done for us.

Now, it really breaks our hearts how soon you left us and please help us surpass the sadness that we feel. You're so brave, Ma. You will always be missed and never forgotten.

Thank you, Ma! I love you! ❤️

“ Auntie Seng,

Seeing your photos reminds me of how cheerful, fun, and loving person you are. Eku pa rin pu makapaniwala na nang kabilis ing milyari; na agad mu kaming likwan.

I'll always remember you auntie, as someone who's tough, someone who always told us not to cry and instead be strong for when people leave, because you always told us that's just how life is. Now, ikang meko ante, nang kasakit pigilan ing gaga. Nang kasakit ing pamaglako mu auntie. :(

I remember you telling me to be more confident, anyang time na atin kung self esteem issues. I remember ginaga ku that day, but looking back I realize you meant well. It was all for me. I'll always remember you as the pretty and stylish auntie; with your scarves, accessories, and hairdos. I always thought you're cool.

I remember on my 8th birthday you bought me stickers and a headband, na kung kaswelu agad keng sinulud tang sapula, at ginamit detang stickers na binye mu.

I remember when I was 10, I got very sick, and you were there with my parents, almost everyday. You were also the one who updated me when mama got sick. You sent me of photos of my parents together whenever you went out.

Then there was a time na we had problems, you told me not to worry and I responded with "ok ku mu pu ante" you said "that's my girl, good to hear positive reply. love you KC", I didn't tell you this but, I cried that day. I appreciate you auntie.

I'll miss you singing along to Top of the World, or Tenesse Waltz. I'll miss you talking about your childhood, and how tough you were even as a kid. I'll miss you talking to and about your grandkids. I'll miss your pretty outfits, and your fierce eyes with your genuine smile. I'll miss you auntie. I already do.

Love you always, KC
